

Space Crystal

One of the two newer species of Crystal, it has been discovered that the energy signature of the Space Crystals resembles that of the very natural riftgates used in interstellar space travel. Man-made wormholes used to transport large groups of spacecraft across great distances give off as well a nearly identical energy signature. With the yet to be understood choices the Crystals make as to which sources of energy to absorb, and which to reject, the manifestation of these Space Crystals raise many questions in researchers' minds about the many naturally occurring wormholes. Once thought to be abnormalities, mysterious anomalies, many scientists have been fascinated by the possibility of a deeper purpose behind these unexplained phenomena of the universe.

Locations

Space Crystals are found in sectors with exotic matter all over the universe. They are commonly blocking passages to the exotic matter.
