

Space Worm

Like Space Maggots, Space Worms are tasked with the humble job of clearing the universe of its cosmic waste. Considerably larger than their blobbish cousins, and considerably more aware, Space Worms have been known to grow aggressive when they, or specifically when their eggs, become threatened. Though invertebrates, they are crowned with a single bone-like spike made of solid tissue that they use to viciously defend their eggs with their lives if need be, only to abandon the newly hatched mere moments after their birth.

Locations

Space Worms can be found on nebula tiles all over the universe.
